A. GUIDES, BEST PRACTICES, AND STANDARDS

- A1. ATA Foundation in association with Cambridge Systematics, Inc., "Incident Management: Challenges, Strategies, and Solutions for Advancing Safety and Roadway Efficiency." National Incident Management Coalition, Alexandria, VA (February 1997).
This report provides guidance on developing or expanding incident management programs. It covers mandates, organizational structure, and availability of resources. Through case studies, it identifies common barriers to the development of incident management programs and recommends strategies to overcome these barriers. Appendices include an inventory of incident management programs benefit/cost analyses, model agreements, funding sources, information on the National Incident Management Coalition, and a list of expert focus group participants.
- A2. Balog, J. N., Boyd, A., and Caton, J. E., "The Public Transportation System Security and Emergency Preparedness Planning Guide," Federal Transit Administration, Washington, DC (January 2003).
This guide was developed to support the activities of public transportation systems to plan for and respond to major security threats and emergencies. The guide identifies the challenges of security and preparedness in the public transportation industry. It provides guidance on developing a Security and Emergency Preparedness Program, evaluating current level of security and emergency preparedness, conducting a threat and vulnerability assessment, and managing threats. The guide also addresses training and exercising in heightened threat conditions and explains available design strategies and technologies to support improved security and to enhance normal and emergency operations.
- A3. Battelle and TotalSecurity.US, "Guide to Developing an Effective Security Plan for the Highway Transportation of Hazardous Materials." Federal Motor Carrier Safety Administration, Washington, DC. <http://www.fmcsa.dot.gov/safetyprog/hm/Security_Plan_Guide.pdf> (December 2003, Downloaded on: December 31, 2003).
The Federal Motor Carrier Safety Administration has created a tool to assist hazardous materials motor carriers and shippers in the development of their security plan. The guide is designed to provide the hazardous materials industry with information to understand the nature of the threats against hazardous materials transportation, identify the vulnerabilities to those threats that exist in a facility, and address actions to reduce the vulnerabilities identified at a facility.
- A4. Beauchesne, A. M., "A Governor's Guide to Emergency Management, Volume One: Natural Disasters." National Governor's Association Center for Best Practices, Washington, DC (2001).
